

Acknowledgments

The Worklife of BC Teachers in 2009 research project was facilitated by many contributions from BCTF staff in various departments.

A special thank you to Anne Field and Amber Yaciw (Research), who contributed to all phases of survey development and implementation. In addition, their painstaking editing and proof-reading greatly enhanced the quality of this work.

We also greatly appreciate the contributions of:

Parminder Bains (Research) assisted with chart preparation.

Larry Kuehn, Director (Research), supported project design and implementation, and critiqued draft reports.

Larry Watson (Information Technology) and Cory Anderson (Member Records) assisted in preparing the member database for the random sample.

Karen Rojem and Emily O'Neill (Information Services) undertook literature searches, co-wrote annotated bibliographies, and researched many of the links to other Canadian and international research on teachers' work, work/life balance, and stress in society. Karen Rojem also managed the content layout for the website.

Joanne Enquist (Information Technology) published the project on the BCTF website.

Jennifer Sowerby (Graphics) designed chapter cover pages.

Without all of these contributions, this study would not have been possible.
